Taylor Wimpey's Melksham site manager wins national quality award

Carl Thomas, site manager at Taylor Wimpey's Pathfinder Place development in Melksham, is celebrating having won a prestigious national house building award.

Out of 11,000 entries, Carl was honoured with an NHBC (National House Building Council) Pride in the Job Quality Award.

The awards recognise an individual's dedication to building high-quality homes for new homebuyers and are presented following a rigorous judging process by NHBC inspectors. This includes assessing the developments throughout the year, as well as spot checks, giving homebuyers the assurance that Taylor Wimpey's Pathfinder Place development provides top-quality homes and excellent customer service.

Carl Thomas, site manager at Pathfinder Place said: "I'm delighted to have won a Quality Award. It's a fantastic honour, not just for me, but the whole team at Pathfinder Place. They all work incredibly hard and take great pride in ensuring that the homes we build are completed to the highest possible standards."

Clare Brimble, sales and marketing director at Taylor Wimpey Bristol, added: "We are committed to maintaining the highest levels of quality and customer service and this recognition has ensured that we continue to be an NHBC award-winning housebuilder year after year.

"Carl's Quality Award is thoroughly deserved, and we'll all be supporting him as he progresses through to the regional heats and hopefully to the grand final."

Pride in the Job is the only UK-wide awards scheme that recognises the significant contribution of site managers who achieve the highest standards in new home construction. It has been instrumental in raising the build quality of new homes in the UK for forty years.

The competition's regional events will now take place virtually in the autumn, whilst the Supreme Award winners will be announced in January 2021.
