Taylor Wimpey's Wilmslow site manager wins national house building award for the second year running

Phil Hollows, site manager at Taylor Wimpey's Heathfield Farm development in Wilmslow, is celebrating having won a prestigious national house building award for the second year in a row.

Out of 11,000 entries, Phil was honoured with a NHBC (National House-Building Council) Pride in the Job Quality Award.

The awards recognise an individual's dedication to building high-quality homes for new homebuyers and are presented following a rigorous judging process by NHBC inspectors. This includes assessing the developments throughout the year, as well as spot checks, giving homebuyers the assurance that Taylor Wimpey's Heathfield Farm development provides top-quality homes and excellent customer service.

Phil Hollows, site manager at Heathfield Farm said: "I'm delighted to have won a Quality Award. It's a fantastic honour, not just for me, but the whole team at Heathfield Farm. They all work incredibly hard and take great pride in ensuring that the homes we build are completed to the highest possible standards."

Chloe Dunn, sales and marketing director for Taylor Wimpey Manchester, added: "We are committed to maintaining the highest levels of quality and customer service, and this recognition has ensured that we continue to be an NHBC award-winning housebuilder year after year.

"Phil's Quality Award is thoroughly deserved, and we'll all be supporting him as he progresses through to the regional heats and hopefully to the grand final."

Phil is one of five site managers employed by Taylor Wimpey Manchester to receive a Pride in the Job Quality Award.

Pride in the Job is the only UK-wide awards scheme that recognises the significant contribution of Site Managers who achieve the highest standards in new home construction. It has been instrumental in raising the build quality of new homes in the UK for 40 years.

The competition's regional events will now take place virtually in the autumn, whilst the Supreme Award winners will be announced in January 2021.
