

Homebuilder celebrates three years of donating to local causes

September 2019

National homebuilder, Taylor Wimpey Manchester, has donated more than £5,000 to local causes and schools in and around the Longbridge community since opening the doors to its Tootle Green development in 2016.

Donations have been given to a host of events and fundraising activities, as part of the company's commitment to supporting causes close to the hearts of the residents, both new and existing.

A total of £750 was donated to Goosnargh and Longridge Agricultural Show to fund a much-needed medical centre, ensuring the safety of visitors throughout the day. The homebuilder has also donated £700 to Longridge Rotary Club's community bike ride, ensuring that participants were kept fuelled up on water, fruit, and energy bars.

More than £2,000 has also been given to local schools to fund essential equipment, trips and sports kit.

Chloe Dunn, sales and marketing director for Taylor Wimpey Manchester, says: "We're committed to investing in the local communities where we build our developments.

"As well as donating to worthy causes, we've opened our Tootle Green development in Longbridge for family fun days and nature walks, helping to foster links and a sense of community between new and existing residents. We look forward to building on this activity over the coming months and years."

Tootle Green is a development of two, three, four and five-bedroom homes, in a variety of mews, semi-detached, and detached styles, with several new releases just launched.

Chloe continues: “I’d encourage anyone looking for a new home in an area with great community spirit to get in touch with our sales team to find out more about the properties and financial schemes available at Tootle Green.”
